

PLANE FARE TO SOUTH AMERICA FROM ENGLAND COSTS ONLY $5,000

London, Aug. 24.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press).—Twenty passengers and a small cargo are to be carried on the first airship journey from Harrow-in-Furness to Rio de Janeiro some time this fall, according to an announcement here. Owners of the aerial leviathan intend, if the initial voyage is successful to maintain a regular four-day service between the two points.

The airship, it is said, will be routed via Lisbon, Sierra Leone (West Africa), and thence across the Atlantic to Rio de Janeiro. The return trip will be made by way of the same points. Sir Woodman Burbridge is reported to have booked three berths for the flight—for himself, his wife and a friend. The price of these tickets was $5,000 each.

The airship is known as the R-50. It has a gas-bag capacity of 1,250,000 cubic feet, more than half the size of the famous R-34. She is considered the most perfectly constructed streamlined type of airship and has a speed of sixty miles per hour. She is 436 feet in length.

Passengers' living quarters are situated on top of the hull and consist of cabins of sleeping berths, a roof garden and a shelter deck. There is an observation car below the hull which is connected with the living quarters by means of a passenger lift through the middle of the craft.

In connection with the progress of aeronautics in England, it is interesting to note that announcement is made by the Air Ministry of the opening next February of a Royal Air Force Cadet college for the training of the permanently commissioned officers of the Royal Air Force. Only fifty-five cadets will be admitted to the opening class of the college. Examinations will be held in November. Candidates must be between seventeen and one-half and nineteen years of age upon entering the school. A two-year course is prescribed. Competitive examinations will govern admission.

MORE HOME DEMONSTRATION COURSES ARE ESTABLISHED IN SOUTHERN COLLEGES

The colleges and universities of the south are realizing the influence as well as the need of the county and the home demonstration agents in the various states. The agricultural colleges and women's colleges now directly cooperating in the work give courses for special training of county agricultural and home demonstration agents.

The first college in the United States, outside of the state agricultural and other co-operating colleges to open its doors to the home demonstration agents and to try to supply them with needed instruction was the George Peabody College for Teachers, Nashville, Tenn. This year many other schools have followed its example, and a number of leading colleges and universities throughout the Southern States are now offering four-year courses especially prepared for the needs of the agents.

Other schools have special short courses for the demonstration agents during the periods when they can best be spared from their counties.

Simply send me your name and I will send you my new copyrighted rupture book and measurement blank. When you return the blank I will send you my new invention for rupture. When it arrives put it on and wear it. Put it to every test you can think of. The harder the test the better you will like it. You will wonder how you ever got along with the old style cruel spring trusses or belts with leg straps of torture. Your own good common sense and your own doctor will tell you it is the only way in which you can ever expect a cure. After wearing it 30 days if it is not entirely satisfactory in every way—if it is not easy and comfortable—if you cannot actually see your rupture getting better and if not convinced that a cure is merely a question of time—just return it and you are out nothing. Any rupture truss that is sent on 30 days' trial before you pay is worth giving a trial. Why not tell your ruptured friends of this great offer? LUXURY TAXES NOT BEING REPEALED BY "GOPS" AS PROMISED

Washington, D. C.—The republican majority in congress appears to continue in a state of agitation over the question of taxes and revenue.

Representative Mundell, republican floor leader, and Representative Ford, chairman of the ways and means committee, who are responsible primarily for fiscal legislation in the lower house of congress, where all such bills must have their inception, have good cause to worry, since the republican house already has appropriated two billion dollars more than the taxes and other forms of revenue will yield during the current fiscal year.

Having pledged the people to reduce or eliminate the so-called luxury taxes, and being unable to do so, the republican leaders now find themselves in the position of having to retain these excises and add a few more in order to meet the governmental expenditures they themselves voted.

The situation is particularly embarrassing to them because it was on these luxury taxes that the republicans had planned to play their very best political card. The democratic house of the last congress had passed a bill repealing the luxury taxes; it had been reported out by the senate finance committee, and by a "gentlemen's agreement" was to be given right of way during the closing days of the session. But when Senator Simmons attempted to obtain the floor he found that "gentlemen's agreement" was of little value as against party politics. The bill was lost in the filibuster conducted by Senators La Follette and Sherman. Republicans, largely because their party leaders decided such a popular bit of legislation as a bill to abolish the luxury taxes should be reserved for the special session which the republicans would control.

In calling this session, the president urged the repeal of these bothersome taxes, but after three and one-half months they are still on the status books, and the republican leaders are unable to figure out the proper method of getting rid of them. So far as the political value of the repeal—when it does come—is concerned, it will be almost all, early leaders agree, because of the inability of the republican majority to long together.

The republican claim of a saving of a billion and a half dollars in the first six weeks of the second session, was quickly disproved by the democratic leaders; so much so that it has not been advanced since. The fact remains, as republican congressmen readily admit, that the only luxury-tax they have repealed has been that on ice cream and soda, and their partisan colleagues in the senate decline to pass even that.

Two Billion for Stock Gambling
Last January loans made to brokers in Wall Street for speculative purposes aggregated 600 million dollars. These loans recently had increased to more than 1,750 million dollars, which ought to give us some idea of the stock gambling debauch that is going on in the street. But this boom in speculation which has been going on without interruption since February 10 suddenly suffered a sharp check the day following the interview between members of the Kansas delegation with Senator Capper, Senator Gore and other senators, and the controller of the currency and head of the federal reserve system, during which these two officials agreed to stop the steady flow of western cash into New York for "bull loans." It was urged upon the financial chiefs at Washington by the delegation from the two houses of congress that western banks send money to New York because of the high rate of interest on these loans which the New York banks lend to speculators to enable in stocks at rates as high as 25 per cent per annum. This kind of thing doesn't help the cost of living to climb down.
